Neither the natural text nor the diagram contained any information. The text was a page from a document with sections on registration, fees, cancellations, location and lodging, agenda, and registration form. The registration form included spaces for name, address, email, phone numbers, and fees paid. The agenda outlined the schedule for the conference, including dates, times, and activities. The location and lodging information provided details about the Cleveland Airport Marriott Hotel, including reservation instructions and parking information. The diagram was not relevant to the text content.
